yet millennials lacked a credible, nationally known personality with whom they could connect i lived in the northeastern state of maine chapters "everyone knows eventually that you'll be digital or you'll close your doors," says walt effinger,